Madame Patti ought not to complain, and doubtless does not, of her success in this country. She appeared in thirty-four entertainments, and her share of the proceeds will foot up about $100,000. This is fully as profitable as editing a newspaper or preaching the gospel.

The Harper's Weekly for Saturday, April 8, contains an admirable portrait of Henry W. Longfellow. It is the best ever printed in an illustrated periodical, and is well worth preserving. Accompanying the portrait are a few reflections about the great poet, by his friend, Richard Henry Stoddard.

Peck's Sun has the following opinion of the manner of shooting Jesse James: "One boast of Jesse was that during the war he killed thirty-six federal soldiers in one hospital. A man who has killed sick soldiers, for fun, the way boys kill flies, is not entitled to be shot in front, and any means of entrapping him to his death should be considered legitimate."

For certain good reasons we would have preferred to see Conger elected, but as the people have decided otherwise, we yield with good grace, and hope Judge Bennett will sit down on every obnoxious evil-doer in the circuit. —Beloit Outlook.

We hope he will sit down on every evil-doer in the circuit, so that the editor of the Outlook will not escape. The way the Outlook managed the judicial canvass, was an outrage on common decency.

The biography of Longfellow will be written by George Washington Greene, a life long friend of the poet. Mr. Greene, lives in an old-fashioned house on a hill over looking the village of Greenwich, Rhode Island. Several years ago Mr. Greene had an old windmill, which stood in an adjoining field, moved up to his house and fitted out as a library. In this old house have been entertained Washington, Lafayette, Longfellow, and a host of other distinguished men.

There died a few days ago in South Carolina, an aged lady, who had three husbands during her lifetime. On her death-bed she made a request that she should be buried by the side of her first husband, for whose memory she seemed to cherish the most tender affection. Before the funeral it was discovered that No. 1 had been twice married, and was peacefully resting between his two wives. The grave of No. 2 was next examined, and it was also found that he, too, was reposing in a like manner. The grave of No. 3 was finally sought out, and as fortune would have it, only one wife reposed by his side, and on the other side was laid to rest the remains of his second wife and last consort.

There comes the report from East Troy, in Walworth county, that Hon. John F. Potter, who represented the First district in the Thirty-fifth, Thirty-sixth, and Thirty-seventh Congresses, is in a dying condition. Mr. Potter, though a man of no great ability nor a party leader, was made a conspicuous figure in Congress during his second term. He won a national reputation by his dauntless courage and unshaken patriotism, when Roger A. Pryor, a member of Congress from Virginia, sought to provoke a duel with Potter in which the latter would probably be killed. Pryor sent a challenge, and Potter quickly accepted. The former was a good shot with a pistol, and it was supposed by the Southern members when Potter had the choice of weapons that he would select pistols for two, but they were not only mistaken but disappointed. Instead of choosing pistols, Potter named bowie knives, and a dark room securely locked as the place. There was not enough courage in Roger A. Pryor with all his boasting and Southern chivalry, to accept the terms upon which he could only meet the Wisconsin member, and he cowardly declined to fight. This made Potter a hero and Pryor a sneaking bragg.

A Flood of Novels.

Why do so many people write novels? Are they moved by a desire for fame? Who reaches fame nowadays by the path of fiction? Two or three in a generation, perhaps, and the most that the others gain is the little notoriety—such a little! All the dozens of ladies and gentlemen who produce three-volume novels cannot in their wildest dreams believe themselves Austens or Thackerays. Is money the bait? Alas! a commodity so very abundant cannot be otherwise than cheap; and novels are like fish in one respect at least—the profit made on them goes chiefly to the middle-men. Is there, then, a veritable charm to many people in seeing themselves in print? Perhaps that may account for it. Whatever the motive may be, it must surely be a pretty strong one that induces anybody to go through the mere manual labor of writing five hundred pages or so; and there are a few novels being poured upon us every month, every week—every day, almost a perfect sea of literature, in which wit and wisdom are coming nearer and nearer to the meagre proportions of Falstaff's pennyworth of sack. Things have already reached such a pass, that the critic is thankful when he finds a book not very dull or very vulgar—a tissue of impossibilities, or a farago of foolishness. One amusing chapter refreshes his spirit, one natural chapter makes him feel that he has found a spring in the desert. If he neither goes to sleep over the second volume nor throws it away from him in uncontrolled exasperation, he is so pleased at the end that he says, "Really that is a very good story, not at all bad company for an hour or two," and straightway sets to work to inform the public that they cannot do better than to read Mr. So-and-So's last book.

IS HE ALIVE?

SEDALIA, Mo., April 7.—Major Jim Wood, of the old Shelby brigade, is a soldier yet in everything, and no man in Central Missouri is more respected. He says: "Jesse James is not dead. If he is Crittenden ought to be strung up; but I tell you Jesse is not dead. Why, when it was reported that Shepherd shot him, and that he died, a wagon containing a coffin was sent to a certain section of this State, and then came back. It was hauled through this section, taken to Kansas City, and ferried over the river, and carried to Mr. Samuels' residence. There the box or coffin was taken out and disappeared in the yard. If Shepherd had told the right kind of a story there would have been the same sensation you are having to-day. I tell you it is a put up job to get the reward. Jesse James was not the man to be fooling around St. Joseph, when he knew that extra efforts, strengthened by a large reward, were being made to capture him. There isn't a single thing in this whole business that smacks of Jesse James; not a bit of it. I know him as well as anybody." Such is the sentiment in central Missouri, and it has every appearance of being sincere.

DEADLY EXPLOSION.

The Tow-boat Bella Mac Explodes Her Boiler Near LaCrosse.

LA CROSSE, April 7.—At an early hour this morning the city was thrown into intense excitement by the report that the boiler of the Bella Mac had exploded, with terrible loss of life, near Brownsville, a few miles below this city. These reports were found to be true, as Hon. D. A. MacDonald, one of the owners of the boat, received a telegram to that effect, and preparations were at once made to go to the scene of the disaster.

The steamer Alfred Toll lay at the levee, and after providing necessary articles, medical aid, etc., the Toll left for the wreck, and arrived at the place of the explosion about 7:30 o'clock a. m. The scene was horrible. The Bella Mac was on her way up at the time of the disaster, and only about ten miles below this city. Through interviews with a number who went on board the boat at the time of the disaster, the Republican reporter learned that everything was running smoothly, and the head engineer and other necessary night watchmen had changed watches and retired for the night. The accident occurred about 1:30 o'clock a. m. and the explosion completely wrecked the upper works of the steamer, causing loss of life, and fearful injury to many of the officers and crew. The crew consisted of seventeen men including the officers. Of this number five are missing, one is dead, and three are probably fatally injured, and the remainder are more or less hurt.

TORN BY A TORNADO

KALAMAZOO, Mich., April 7.—About 6 o'clock last night the region of country north and west from here was visited by the most terrible cyclone ever witnessed in this part of the State. At Kendall, in Van Buren county, the large dwelling house of Mr. Wild was moved about three feet from its foundation, and blown down, killing Mr. Wild and injuring his wife and a lady friend with them. The storm passed in an easterly direction and committed great devastations in Plainfield, unroofing houses, laying waste fences and mowing a swath a dozen miles in width. A Mr. Isaac Simmons, of Cooper, was fatally, and many more persons seriously injured. Hail and rain accompanied the wind, and hail stones fell from eight to nine inches in diameter. The scene as described by eye-witnesses was terrible. The cyclone moved east across the northern part of this county, unroofing barns, and doing other damage. It is rumored a man was killed in Cooper township.

"First a cough, carried me off, And then a coffin they carried me off in." This will not be your epitaph if you take your cough and Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" in time. MILWAUKEE.

MILWAUKEE, April 7.—The first results of the election of the mongrel ticket in this city manifested themselves to-day in a manner that is awakening the people in general to a realization of the fact that a great mistake has been made. At an early hour this morning there were found posted in different places in the cigar factories in which are employed non-union men, notices upon which were printed the skull and cross bones, and over them the words "scabs." Soon afterward the morning mail delivery brought to most of the non-union works threatening letters headed by the same significant and ghastly sign, and in the workmen's homes threatening missives of the same kind were found, where they had been placed during the night by the union men. The receipt of these Kukluxian threats produced the greatest consternation among the workmen, and it was with the greatest difficulty that the cigar manufacturers succeeded in keeping their men at work.

The Mayor and Chief of Police were at once notified of the state of affairs, and strenuous efforts are being made to discover some of the parties guilty of sending the threats. Among the business men and citizens generally this action of the striking cigar-makers is considered as a natural outgrowth of the success of the Trades Union Democratic ticket in the recent election. The Trades Union, though having but 400 votes, felt their political importance since the election. Furthermore it is expected.

THE MORMONS.

SALT LAKE, April 7.—The Mormon Spring conference met yesterday. The attendance was slim and the proceedings tame. There is a great ferment in the Mormon mind, and the church leaders seem unable or unwilling to sound any rallying cry. Mormons are heard to regret that Brigham Young is not alive. They recall that he contemplated abandoning polygamy if the Reynolds decision was against it, and demand that the present church leaders shall openly announce their submission to the law or their intention to continue to defy it. Their instructions to polygamists to find separate houses for their plural wives is regarded as cowardly, and is creating dissatisfaction among the Mormon women.

The coming Constitutional Convention is expected to provide against the further extension of polygamous marriages, but what people already in polygamy are to do gives most concern. Some polygamists have sent away their plural wives. Others have not, and say they will not. Although greatly disturbed as to possible consequences, they say they are willing to suffer political disfranchisement and aid in stopping further polygamous marriages, but that they will not abandon their plural families, and they fear prosecution if they do not. The women have suddenly acquired greatly increased importance. The polygamists will probably not endeavor to be registered for voting by the election commission. They expect to be able to elect monogamous Mormons to all offices. Nevertheless there is a great rush for naturalization papers. There would be but little disposition among Gentiles to disturb existing polygamous relations if the church would stop the practice where it is; but they have no disposition to do that, or those who have the disposition lack the courage to act.

Solomon K. Noble, Des Moines, Ill., says: "I suffered for years with itching piles, and was unable to find relief until I commenced the use of the most excellent of all healing compounds, Cole's Carbolicare. It has worked wonders for me. I have found it to be the best of all salves for cuts, sores and anything that needs to be healed." Sold in 25 and 75 cent boxes.

THE BAPTISTS.

NEW YORK, April 7.—The action of the American Bible Society in refusing to circulate the Judson translation of the Bible in Barmah because the word "baptize" was not translated "dip," as in the Luther version, has aroused the Baptists, and they are about to re-enter the missionary field. Circulars bearing the signatures of leading Baptists here have been issued calling a meeting for next Thursday evening. The object of the meeting is "to concert measures that will command the confidence of the entire Baptist denomination," that will meet promptly the pressing demand for the scriptures, and especially supply the wants of 600,000 of followers, a great majority of whom are connected with that denomination, who have claims on the Baptists, and who are destitute of the Word of Life.

How an Indian Boy Shoots.

The remarkable shooting of the young Nez Perces Indian boy, Otto, was witnessed by a large audience of those interested in rifle shooting. The most remarkable feature of the exhibition was the lightning quickness of the boy. But very few of the attempts failed. The first shot was at a five-piece target on the head of a figure representing a man, and was hit, the distance being fifteen paces. The next was the cutting of a string that suspended a figure at the rear of the stage.
This rifle was picked up from the stage by the lad after he had turned a somersault, and the shot was fired almost instantly. The most remarkable shot of the evening was accomplished by the use of peculiarly placed appliances, in the following manner: In a small steel frame a pistol-barrel was suspended; behind the barrel a razor had been fixed, and on either side of it was suspended a glass ball. The razor was then taken to the front of the stage and blindfolded, with his face to the audience. At the command "about face," he turned, raised his rifle, and, after only a momentary hesitation, fired. The ball passed through the pistol, was split by the razor, and each glass ball was broken by half the bullet. This shot is said to be due to the boy's wonderful gift of the power of location. The precision of the aim is secured by taking a position directly in front of the object, and aim is taken by a certain pressure of the riflestock against the shoulder and cheek.
An exhibition bayonet drill followed.
The boy was applauded for his marksmanship and dexterity.--San Francisco Call.

The Boston Star Knows of a servant- girl who has remained in a family for thirty-one years. We presume she is married to the head of the family. Many a wife is little better than a servant-girl after marriage. She has to work harder if anything.

Divorces in Different Countries.

Australians--Divorces have never been sanctioned in Australia.

Jews--In olden times the Jews had a discretionary power of divorcing their wives.

Javans--If a wife be dissatisfied she can obtain a divorce by paying a certain sum.

Thibetians--Divorces are seldom allowed, unless with the consent of both parties--neither of whom can afterwards remarry.

Moors--If a wife does not become the mother of a boy, she may be divorced with the consent of the tribe, and she can marry again.

Abessinians--No form of marriage is necessary. The connection may be dissolved and renewed as often as the parties think proper.

Siberians--If a man be dissatisfied with the most trifling act of his wife, he tears the cap or veil from her head and this constitutes a divorce.

South Sea Islands--The connection hardly deserves the name of marriage, as it is dissolved whenever the husband desires a change.

Coreans--The husband can divorce his wife at pleasure and leave her the charge of maintaining their children.
If she prove unfaithful he can put her to death.

Siamese--The first wife may be divorced, but not sold as the others may be. She then may claim the first, third, and fifth child, and the alternate child are yielded to the husband.

Arctic Regions--When a man desires a divorce, he leaves the house in anger and does not return for several days. The wife understands the hint, packs her cloths and leaves.

Cochin Chinese--If the parties choose to separate, they break a pair of chopsticks or copper coin in the presence of witnesses, by which action the union is dissolved. The husband must restore to the wife the property belonging to her prior to her marriage.

American Indians--Among some tribes the pieces of stick given to the witnesses of the marriage are burnt as a sign of divorce. Usually new connections are formed without the old ones being dissolved. A man never divorces his wife if she has borne him sons.

Sleep-Waking.

The most remarkable instances of sommnambulism are those in which the sommnambulist works or writes with intelligence and method.

A young French ecclesiastic frequently rose in the middle of the night, went to a table, took pen and ink and wrote portions of sermons. It was not mere mechanical work--he would make frequent corrections to improve the grammar and syntax of his composition. An opaque screen was placed between his eyes and the paper, but he wrote just the same. In another case, a young poet, he went to bed, rose in the night, went to his table, and finished some so much to his satisfaction that he applauded his own genius and taste; in the morning he remembered nothing of the matter.

Dr. Carpenter mentions the instance of a man who wrote accurately in his sleep, placing his words at good distances apart, dotting every i and crossing every t.

A young collegian got out of bed asleep, lit a candle, sat down to a table, took pen and paper, wrote out some geometrical and algebraic problems, extinguished the light and went to bed again--his eyes closed all the time.

A learned professor set his pupils to work out on a very intricate calculation.
One of them went to bed with his mind full of the subject, and in the morning was not a little surprised to find his table covered with sheets of paper on which the calculation was fully and satisfactorily developed. The writing was in his own hand; he had risen in the night and done it while asleep.

Planting Nuts.

Nuts intended for planting should not be allowed to become dry, if it is desired to have them sprout the season they are planted. Immediately upon falling from the trees they must be inserted in the soil, covering but slightly with light, friable earth or sand, and early the next spring the young plants will appear. In the case of walnuts it will be well to hull them before placing under ground. Owing to the difficulty experienced in transplanting all kinds of bearing trees, the seeds should be placed where the trees are desired to remain.
Nuts intended for planting may be preserved over the winter in slightly moist sand placed in a cool cellar, and of course set in the open ground as soon as germination begins, which will be ver-early.

How to Secure Health.

It seems strange that any one will suffer from the many derangements brought on by an impure condition of the blood, when SCOVILL'S SARSAPARILLA AND STILLINGIA, or BLOOD AND LIVER SYRUP, will restore perfect health to the physical organism. It is indeed a strengthening syrup, pleasant to take, and has proven itself to be the BEST BLOOD PURIFIER ever discovered, effectually curing Scrofula, Syphilis disorders, Weakness of the Kidneys, Erysipelas, Malaria; all Nervous Disorders and Debility, Bilious complaints and all Diseases indicating an Impure Condition of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, Stomach, Skin, etc. It corrects Indigestion. A single bottle will prove to you its merits the healthy remedy for it ACTS LIKE A CHARM, especially when the complaint is of an exhaustive nature, having a tendency to lessen the natural vigor of the brain and nervous system.

BAKER'S PAIN PAINACEA cures Pain

DR. ROGER'S VEGETABLE WORM SYRUP instantly destroys worms and

PREVIOUS to the invention of the mule for spinning cotton few operators could spin it to 200 hanks to the pound, 840 yards making a hank. At the same time the natives of India were spinning cotton to a fineness of about 300 and 400 hanks.

Since the introduction of the mule the Messrs. Houldsworth, of Manchester, England, have succeeded in spin-ing 700 hanks from a pound of cotton.
Within a short time 10,000 hanks have been spun from a pound, but the thread was too fine to be woven. The thread from this single pound of cotton reached in length 4,770 miles. The finest cotton yarn is spun in England and made into lace in France.

Food for Young and Old.

Food and medicine for young and old adian Barley, Malt, Hops, Quinine,

Non-Nourishing, Strengthening, Vitalizing and Purifying, by reason of their Material than all other forms of malt or other food.

Eastern Farming--Present and Future.

There are many defects and drawbacks in our present system of farming.
One is the manner in which we sell our products. We sell our beef and pork at cents, buying back at twelve and eighteen, thus doubling and tripling our selling price; so with other products, a farmer that is above board can hold for better prices, but all people cannot do it, and we are unto him who falls into the hands of middlemen and sharpers.
Some farmers also sell their crops and go on cropping, year after year, returning no equivalent to the soil. He saves money and is an excellent man, but from the impoverished state of his land is a very poor farmer. Another farmer buys stock, partly fattened, feeds his produce to them until fat, sells for the advance, making by the transaction three sources of profit--first, the beef, second, the increase in weight which pays the keeping, while the manure made is the third return for the consumption of produce. A farmer who keeps up in this manner the strength of the soil is a sensible man and a good farmer. That the soil needs restitution is a fundamental principle is sound agriculture.

There is another class of farmers of the present day who may be called Vennor farmers. They do not plant corn, it is going to be a wet season; they don't plant potatoes, it is going to be dry; their wheat and grain crop is exceedingly light, having no faith in seed time and weather they have nothing to harvest in the fall. Many farmers of the present day are called "fancy farmers." A man of means purchases a worn-out farm, erects upon it a set of first-class buildings, ditches, drains, and with high manuring raises large crops. His valuation is increased, he pays a large tax, his property adds to the wealth and beauty of the town. But says one of these Vennor farmers: "He will fail up.
He is buying all the improved tools he can find; he is dealing in improved breeds of cattle, hogs and sheep; he raises 100 bushels of corn the acre; gets fifty cents a pound for his butter--he cannot stand it long; he has only come out into the country to make a spread, pay twenty-five cents on the dollar, and return to the city. He is a fraud!" In my estimation we want more of these same kind of farmers in our farming communities. When a man of wealth turns his attention to agricultural experiments, and gives his experience to the public without cost, it seems to be very un-generous to call such a man a "fancy farmer." He should rather be called a benefactor to his brother farmers. If his experience proves a failure he asks no one to make him good for his loss, and we might learn from one of these simple experiments more than could be learned in a life-time without it. If this fancy farmer had bought an old wagon, an old plow, a peg-tooth harrow, and kept it half of the time at the shop for repairs, he would have been considered a shrewd man by these wonderful farmers, who always knew it did not pay to have new tools.

What is to be the future of farming no one can foretell; what it should be, we can imagine and advocate. Future farming will require a more intelligent culture of the soil, a more thorough knowledge of the wants of plant food, a more careful comparison year with another, of the success in raising different crops. Farming needs a more thorough organization. Combinations are what move the world, action combined, united action is what is wanted --not secret, but open; not a war upon railroads that have done so much to open up our States and Territories, but a war upon their management compelling them to respect the rights and privileges of the people from whom they received their land grants and charter, to work somewhat in the interests of the people rather than in the interest of watered stock, and in the interest of watered stock, and in the dividends. Let the farmers combine and they are a tower of strength. Let them send men to the Legislature who will work in the interest of agriculture.
The merchant has his board of trade, the mechanic his union, the gambler and boot-black theirs, but the farmer has not the courage to organize. With this organization we want larger crops at less expense, more stock, more money, more manure.

The farmer of the past has not taken the rank in society he ought. He works hard and reads little, he acquires what little knowledge he has by tough experience and does not communicate it to others, while other professions have the faculty of telling all they know and sometimes a little more. Good farming will furnish the means for educating your children. Education keeps good neighbors near together, leads to good roads and bridges, good schools and churches, while there is a general equality that as a whole makes the happiest communities. The farmer of the future will raise more farms, more stock, use more labor-saving machinery. He will learn to feed for an end. He will more freely plow under green crops, and know more of the wants of his land, and when grain is at a certain price he will know what he will get for beef and pork. There is no reason, when the port of Boston has sufficient terminal facilities, why the raising of beef for shipping could not be made profitable on the hills that are now run up with brush. Farming, to be successful, must move with the age, keep up with other professions.-- Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

It is a sad mistake for a farmer to neglect the kitchen garden. Every farm ought to have a garden, one with a variety of early and late vegetables, for the supply of the family table. It need not be large, but it should be highly cultivated and made rich with thoroughly rotted manure. "I make my garden black with manure three times a year, and it pays," we overheard a practical gardener say; and he was right. The farm garden does not require so much time and labor as labor applied at the right time. And the value of fresh vegetables in agreeable variety cannot be over-estimated, whether in the effect upon the health of the family or in the added charm thus given to the home life. Try it this year.--N. Y. Examiner.

The Chinese minister with his interpreter called at the house of Secretary Frelinghuysen a day or two since, when Miss Frelinghuysen offered him a cup of tea. The minister drank the tea, and remarked very coolly: "It is of medium quality. I will send you some that is really fine." The next day she received, with his compliments, two pretty boxes of tea and a pair of vases of exquisitely carved white wood. The diplomat afterward explained that only the Chinese grandees get the best quality of tea. Foreigners can pay what they choose, they can get it.

He brings many improvements in the photographic art, and is now ready to let the public test his skill. Give him a call.

—We have received intelligence from Spencer, Iowa, to the effect that Harry Abbey, formerly of this city, while handling a gun, it prematurely discharged, inflicting a severe wound on one of his feet. A second dispatch announced that the foot would have to be amputated. His ward, has gone to Iowa, to take care of Harry during his unfortunate confinement and suffering. Harry Abbey was assisting Harry Merrill in the management of the latter's stock farm, is an industrious, sober-minded young man, and this sad accident, which will cripple him for life, will be most deeply regretted by many friends of the mother and son in this city.

—Arrangements have been made by the committee having in charge the masquerade which takes place next Wednesday evening, at the Guards' armory, with Miss Wadhams, of Chicago (the best costumers of that city) whereby they will send a splendid selection of their finest costumes, for use on that evening; placing the costumes under the direction and care of the committee, who will have them on exhibition at the ladies' room in the armory next Tuesday. Prices will range from two to five dollars, thus enabling the committee to furnish the dearest and best costumes at more moderate prices than heretofore. Tickets for the masquerade will be on sale Monday, at the drug and bookstores of the city. Prices of admission, for gentlemen, one dollar; free admission to ladies in fancy dress or mask. Spectators 25 cents each.

The Dam.

At the hour of going to press this afternoon, the dam was in a very precarious condition. Additional portions were washed out about three o'clock, and it is more than probable that a large part of it will be forced out in a very short time. Nothing that engineers can do will save it from loss.

The water is too high to permit any work to be done. The best is hoped for, but at this writing it does not seem possible to save the dam from great injury.

The Third Ward Aldermanic Question.

There will be a special election held in the Third ward, on Monday, April 17, to elect an alderman to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Hawes. There is some talk among a few Republicans of calling out a Democrat to fill that vacancy, and just why this remarkably strange proceeding should for a moment enter the heads of a single Republican cannot be imagined. If the ward was totally destitute of a Republican who was not by ability and character, fit to sit in the common council, then there might possibly be an excuse for the movement of calling out a Democrat. The ward is a Republican ward, has a large number of solid business and professional men in it, men who are as solidly Republican as they are solid in business, and who would represent the ward with honor and satisfaction in the city council. From among these men should an alderman be selected. If any one can show wherein the Republicans are not to be trusted with that office, then it will be time to talk of calling out a Democrat.

GENTLEMEN—Your esteemed favor I have just received. Please accept my thanks for the compliment therein contained. It will afford me great pleasure to return to Janesville, and appear as "Juliet," and I beg to name Monday evening, April 10th.

The Cartland-Murray Combination.

An engagement for three nights, by the Cartland-Murray Combination, will begin at the Opera house next Monday. An exchange says of Miss Cartland and her troupe:

"Miss Cartland, as Fanchon, excelled her previous effort in this city. Her Fanchon was in harmony with the original story, and no doubt made a lasting impression upon her audience. She is a clever actress, and one who will increase in favor as she is better known and often seen, as she will be during the week."

"The audience was so pleased with the rendition of Fanchon and Miss Cartland's superb acting that she was called before the curtain at the close of every act. Mr. Murray, as Didier Barbaud, created a decided impression and kept the audience in good humor. Mr. Murray is a splendid actor, and never fails to present his part just as it should be. Mr. H. W. Mitchell as Landry acted the lover to perfection. He is a fine reader, and played the part in a natural and acceptable manner. Bertha Lieb as Mother Barbaud elicited the favor of the audience. She presented all there was in the but in it she exhibited the fact that she was on home on the stage. During the week Mrs. Lieb will have occasion to display her fine histrionic talent. The company is one of the best we have had here this season, and we predict crowded houses every night."

Miss Coombs as Juliet.

There was a fair audience at Lappin's hall, last evening, to welcome Miss Jane Coombs as Juliet, in Shakespeare's immortal love poem, "Romeo and Juliet." For a long time Miss Coombs has been one of the most cultured and eloquent interpreters of female characters on the American stage. She has been regarded as being especially fine as Juliet—a character which she has acted over a thousand times. Those who heard her last night, and have a thorough understanding of the character, were not disappointed. There was some dragging at first in the play, but not on the part of Coombs; but when the fourth and fifth acts were reached, the climaxes came in and the audience attested its appreciation of the performance by enthusiastic demonstration. In the last act, the scene between the dying lover and the awakening "Juliet," is one in which Miss Coombs throws her great power, and the audience last night fully realized that power and indulged in lavish applause. The support was very good on the whole, and the costumes in keeping with the importance of the play. Considering the reputation of the actress, the power of the tragedy, and the fact that it was "Good Friday" yesterday, many of our citizens desire to hear Miss Coombs under more favorable circumstances, and have requested her to repeat the performance next Monday evening, which she has consented to do.
